Cold Nips Some Of Ohio's Fruit

Wind Wards Off Damage in Marion County but Other Areas Suffer.

An unreasonable cold wave swept in on Marion and central Ohio from Canada late yesterday, driving temperatures to below freezing and causing fruit damage in some sections.

A wind last night was all that saved Marion county's fruit crop, especially peaches, from severe damage, county fruit growers said. Although no frost damage was reported here last night as temperatures dropped to 30 degrees, fruit growers were fearful that tonight's predicted low temperatures might not be accompanied by helping winds.

According to an Associated Press dispatch from Columbus, scattered frosts were reported in central Ohio and U. S. Meteorologist George Minding forecast more of the same for tonight.

Considerable damage to orchards in some sections was indicated, though many farmers used mudges and heaters in an effort to save buds.

Snow in Some Places

Snow fell in some sections of the state, the Associated Press reported. Lima reported half an inch and Washington C. H. in Marion county experienced a 10-inch snow squall at 8 a. m. May 7. Roofs in the Cleveland area were whitened lightly and roofs were frozen over. A trace of snow hit Marion late yesterday.

Marion County Agricultural agent Arthur H. Smith said he observed the freezing temperatures had not injured spring crops. As of 28 degrees without severely damaging fruit. County fruit crops are being damaged, however, he said, by lack of pollination, since the weather has been too cold to bees to work.

Today was believed by local weather observers to be the coldest in 10 years in recent years. Ten years ago the low was 45 and the coldest 67. Twenty years ago the low was 49 and the coldest 70.

Oats Planting Delayed

The cold and wet weather during the last month has delayed Marion county farmers several weeks with their oats planting. Farmers report only about 10 percent of the county's oats have been planted and little more is expected to be sown because of the late season.

Columbus reported a low of 29 last night, Akron and Cincinnati 30 and Cleveland and Toledo 31.

The temperature in Columbus was 32 today for the coldest May in the city's weather bureau, since 1879.

Ohio State university horticulturist said damage to fruit trees from frost to medium and heavy and peach trees were damaged.

Wide Area Shivers

The entire county east of Rockies, was expected to continue for two or three days, although warmer afternoons were predicted for tomorrow. The nights were expected to be cold with frosts over much of the midwest and east.

Music by Marion Composers Placed On Display Here

Original musical compositions, and lyrics written for singing, work of Marion and former Marion residents, together with books and articles on subjects in the musical field, also by Marion persons, are on display in two downtown store windows this week. The exhibits are shown in keeping with National Music week observance here. Mrs. E. W. Warwick and Mrs. O. R. Green were in charge of setting up the displays.

The original manuscripts are shown in the north window of Wiant's book store and in the main street window of the H. Schaffner Co. store. Among them are the music and words of "Hail Ohio" by Mrs. Faye Mouser which has been featured a number of times both instrumentally and vocally in various program presentations this week.

Also shown are original music by Mrs. Griselda Davis Donough, Mrs. H. T. Williams, Arthur Kellogg, Dr. Edward Ellsworth Hipsher, Mrs. J. W. Baker, Mrs. Green, Blanche McCormick, Paul Steward, Ethel Cole Duffey, Maxine Morral, Paula Duffy (Vivian Long) and Richard D. Myers. Poems and verses, some of which have been awarded special recognition in district and state competitions, are by Mrs. Mildred Willis, Miss Maye Evangelina Lawrence, Mrs. Stewart Vermillion, Dr. Hipsher, Douglas Mackintosh, Mrs. Mouser, Maxine Morral, B. Y. Williams, Mr. Steward, Mrs. Duffey and Miss Elaine Bullinger. YOUR HEALTH

By HERMAN N. BUNDSEN, M.D.

Diagnosis

Whenever doctors are called on to deal with a symptom which may be produced by any one of many different causes they must turn detective, making a thorough examination not only of the affected part but often, of the entire body as well.

Pruritus and itching around the lower opening of the bowel is such a symptom, being caused by any one of a dozen different disorders, or even at times by uncleanliness. Warts, fissures or cracking of the lining membrane of the lower part of the bowel, piles or hemorrhoids may all be responsible for this persistent and distressing itching. So may pinworms or other parasites, scabies or lice.

Usually, when the cause is due to any of these things, it is easy to discover and simple to correct. In the great majority of instances, however, no such condition may be found to be present. The itching seems to exist in and of itself, perhaps as the result of some nervous reaction whose true nature has not yet been discovered, and no matter what type of medicine is given not much relief seems to occur.

Naturally such cases of pruritus have in the past been difficult to treat. Now, however, according to Dr. Campbell M. Gardner of Montreal they may be relieved by a simple operation. In 35 patients treated by operation, a complete cure resulted after all other forms of treatment failed. In carrying out the operation three triangular areas of skin around the anus are removed. The width of these triangles varies but strips of skin must be left between them. The areas to be removed are colored with a dye so the surgeon can know what areas of skin to remove. Following the removal of the skin, a gauze pack is inserted.

The patients are allowed up immediately after the operation and their diet is not restricted. Mineral oil is given from the first day to keep the bowel movements soft and on the second or third day the gauze packing is removed. Baths are taken three times daily and always after each bowel movement.

On and after the seventh day a dilator is used to make sure that the scar tissue which forms does not narrow the lower opening of the bowel. Within two months, the area is entirely healed and the itching has completely disappeared.

Of course this operation is not recommended in all cases of pruritus, but when other, simpler measures have failed the itching is severe and the patient cannot obtain relief, it would appear that the operative treatment may be well worth trying.

Marlow Lifts Lid on Supreme Court To Show Wheels Turning

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, May 8.—How do the U. S. supreme court's nine justices arrive at their opinions?
Here's how.

You've sued Smith in the lower federal courts and lost. You still can appeal to the supreme court,
the last resort.

Through your lawyer you file a petition there, asking that your case be heard. Smith's lawyer files a petition saying it should not be heard.

Copies of the two petitions go to each of the nine justices.
They read them.

Every Saturday the justices meet behind thick, closed doors to consider a number of things.

James Marlow

Guest speaker was Rev. Melvin Truax, who took his text from Ephesians 1:7. After the choir sang "I Must Tell Jesus," Rev.
Truax gave the closing prayer.

One Written Opinion

The five on the majority side will agree to let one of them—say Justice Murphy—write the majority opinion.

The four on the minority side will agree to let one of them—say Justice Black—write the minority opinion.

Murphy and Black write their opinions which are distributed to all other justices.

Some, or all, of the justices on Murphy's side, although agreeing with him, may want to say some things he didn't say in his opinion.

Then they will write separate,
concurring opinions.

Some, or all, of the justices on Black's side, although agreeing with him generally, may want to say some things he didn't say in his opinion.

Then they will write separate,
dissenting opinions.

Opinions Printed

When the justices have finished writing, exchanging, reading and, finally in conference, discussing these opinions, they are printed by a government printer in the basement of the supreme court building.

Then at noon on a Monday—
Monday is opinion day—the justices file into open court and read their opinions.

But when do the justices get time—since a number of opinions are handed down on Mondays—for all the writing and looking up of law necessary to produce well-reasoned opinions?

The justices listen to arguments from noon till 4:30 p. m. Mondays through Friday two weeks in a row. Then for two weeks they don't appear in court at all except on Monday to deliver opinions.

So they have two full weeks a month for writing, thinking, looking up law and, as mentioned, they meet on Saturdays to exchange ideas. Each justice has a law clerk to help him.

French Cabinet Shakeup

THE FRENCH Communists, as large and influential a group of Reds as will be found outside Russia, suddenly are slapped down and left without cabinet representation following a vote of confidence for the Ramadier coalition government.

Thus the uneasy French government kicks out one of its main props. Whether it can stand without Communist support is questionable, for the Communists, through control of the unions, can tie up the national economy in a general strike. Now the French Socialist right wing will undertake to disprove the latter half of the axiom, "It is impossible to govern with the Communists and equally impossible to govern without them."

A French cabinet member says the shakeup comes as a result of the "Truman Doctrine." With some positive signs of resistance to the spread of communism, he believes the Ramadier government can contain the discontent in the ranks of the workers.

Certainly the French Communists are aware of the Truman Doctrine, for at a meeting of the central committee in March, Laurent Casanova, whom French Reds call "the eye of Moscow," set as one of the cardinal points of party policy the importance of undermining any government which was relying on U. S. aid.

The French cabinet shakeup is not an isolated incident which will be forgotten tomorrow. It is one of a series of developments which may determine the political shade of western Europe for years to come.

Prize Packages

USAGE is molding another old word into new meanings. The victim this time is "package," which for some 300 years has meant a bundle prepared for transportation.

"Package" now may mean what Walter Reuther gets in negotiations with General Motors, what a merchant sells for assembly by the buyer as a unit—such as a prefabricated house or a power plant—or a group of entertainers.

We may expect in due time packages of culture, health, science, home furnishings and the like, meaning in each case what someone decides we should have and will be willing to buy. This will be expedited, of course, by public relations experts and psychiatrists with plenty of know-how polling cross-sections of the mass market etc. etc.

The more new meanings the merrier, but is there anything significant in the vagueness of the thoughts the new meanings are supposed to convey?

Grateful for Small Favors

EACH day's news from Palestine is, if possible, worse than the news of the day before. The British may be shucking off their responsibility in the Mediterranean, but they are still holding the hottest of all Middle Eastern potatoes.

They have known for a long time what their critics are now beginning to realize: There is no solution for the problem in Palestine. The problem is now to reconcile a conflict between irreconcilables, some of whom may be playing the game of the one foreign power with everything to gain and nothing to lose by encouraging chaos in the Holy Land.

Americans, between criticisms of the British for not doing the impossible and side-taking in a conflict that cannot be settled but might be controlled, given enough time, should be grateful for small favors. They do not have Palestine to worry about under the Truman doctrine—yet.

Boo to Ilya

ILYA EHRENBURG, the Soviet Union's roving reporter who visited the United States a year ago, has been troweling sarcasm on the American way of life ever since. That's his privilege.

Who, he inquires in Pravda—as if he didn't know—are the half-baked crusaders, expansionists and hypocrites? Who's carrying an atomic bomb in one hand and an Easter egg in the other? Whose guns, warships and instructors are being sent to China, Turkey, Iran and Greece? There's more, all suggesting that Ilya feels extremely uneasy when he thinks about the United States. He should feel that way.

The fact Americans forget most often is that Russia's fear of the United States goes away back to the American revolution, to the czars and their royal buddies who were scared silly of the American republic and its libertarian upstarts preaching that the people were more important than the despots. That was radical stuff in the 19th century, and it's still radical stuff in the middle of the 20th century for the rulers of Russia. Boo to you, Ilya.

Did You Know?

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

Union Reform Battle Turns To Quiet Side.

WASHINGTON, May 8—The main dish of the new Republican leadership is turning out to be something of an entrée. The union reform legislation upon which the nation was supposed to rise or fall is attracting less and less sound and fury.

The lobbying groups are still at it, but less than you would expect. Senate reporters claim to have seen no sign of the AFL-CIO buttonholers or the NAM-C. of C. bellringers since the senate committee closed the hearings and reported out its moderated (Ives-Dewey?) bill. Ads are being bought by opposing sides in the newspapers. The AFL and CIO held a fair get-together. But aside from such developments, the propaganda has a partial, routine flavor.

This is attributable to the rather clever strategy of the big unions in getting the jump on the bill by closing two year contracts for substantial wage increases before it could be passed.

As the union leaders were scared out of the indiscriminate national wave of strikes in which they indulged themselves last year, except for telephones and coal, the legislation is not subject to critical current application.

Then, furthermore, the realization is beginning to grow (although it is not being publicized) that the unions can work rather well under either the firm house reform bill or the weaker senate committee measure. Their ability for just collective bargaining will not be impaired materially by either bill, certainly not by the final form of the legislation which will be somewhat less than the house bill but more than the senate bill. Neither would break the unions. At any rate the legislative terms are experimental and no doubt will be altered by experience next year. From any objective viewpoint, it merely lightly turns the federal setup against the worst abuses.

Take the industry wide bargaining restrictions, for instance. The ban could hardly be effective. The unions can get around it. While an international union would not be allowed to dictate terms to a local, it could recommend terms and the local could ask it to suggest terms. Through internal union connections between the international and local, the unions could do much as they now do. They could certainly get around this proposed senate amendment, which the unions call "harsh," much easier than they got around the Hatch act.

You never hear much of this truly objective side of the story, because the propagandists on both sides are viewing with alarm in order to influence the final form of the legislation as much as possible for their respective sides.

Furthermore, the bills are sunk in politics, all kinds of politics, personal, inter and intra-party. This is a pre-presidential year when lines are forming. Mr. Truman's next year Georgia delegates have already called at the White House. His representatives in the senate are trying to be coy and create doubt as to whether he will sign whatever bill Congress passes.

The politicians all expect he will veto it for political reasons, if no other. The major Democratic strength outside the south has been among the unions and city political machines which were allied politically, and the veto would be designed to perpetuate this alliance for 1948. As Gov. Dewey's man, Senator Ives, cast the deciding vote which weakened the senate committee bill (7 to 6), the supposedly leading Republican presidential candidate has assumed a pro-union and anti-union character against Senator Taft, and also Speaker Martin, whose leadership secured house passage of the firm Hartley bill.

These developments have grown out of senate consideration of the measure which thus strangely has assumed something of the character of an anti-climax.

Senator Vandenberg wants to change all this. If he has his way, people will continue to look to The Record . . . but not as a fiction publication.

Stalin's Visitor

By RAYMOND MOLEY

THE Stalin-Stassen interview was a measure of Stassen, as well as of the generalissimo. The job he did in bringing out essential points of concern in our relations with Russia should be of great value.

The fact that Stassen holds no public office has been regarded by political observers as a handicap to his political chances. But his freedom from official restraints was a real advantage in his mission to Europe. For Stalin not only expressed his own views, but interviewed his visitor. And Stassen could express himself without committing the state department, the congress or the Republican party. If Stassen follows up this promising beginning in his speeches in the United States, he will not only move forward as a candidate, but serve the cause of peace.

Need of Leadership
Stassen is beginning his public campaign at a moment when the Republican party needs more leadership in the field of international relations. Our differences with Russia cannot be solved merely by cooperation between the President and Republican leaders in congress. Vandenberg, Dulles and others are fully committed to the President's program. Whatever they say must be condoned by the Truman-Marshall policies. Wallace, on the other hand, is committed to strong and not very constructive opposition. Stassen can take a constructive position without attacking the administration and without manifesting sentimental sympathy for communism.

What is needed is fuller knowledge of Soviet long-term policy.

Britain Increases Her Baby Crop
By The Associated Press

NEW YORK—Britain's baby population is soaring. More children were born in Britain last year than in any year since 1923. British Information Service reports, and the mortality rate was the lowest on record.

Sir Wilson Jameson, chief medical officer of the Ministry of Health, announces in his annual report that last year, 43 babies under one year died for every 1,000 births; it was 46 in 1945 and 52.8 before the war. Out of every 1,000 babies, 11 less died at birth last year than pre-war. Little more than a third of the pre-war number of mothers died in childbirth.

The birth rate—191 per 1,000 of the population—was higher than the last pre-war year by four per 1,000.

N. Y. "Big Noise"
NEW YORK—Manhattan is the big noise in New York, says the New York City League for Less Noise. Among the other boroughs Brooklyn is runner-up, especially when the baseball Dodgers are in town.

The league city police records to show that city police issued 205,660 formal warnings to noise makers and arrested or issued summonses in 45,345 cases during 1946. There were 8,600 warnings about noisy children, 60,000 warnings to game players. Two-thirds of the arrests were for being "loud and boisterous."

Views on Italian Treaty

By WALTER LIPPMANN

ALTHOUGH a plausible case can be made out for "delay" in ratifying the Italian treaty, it seems to me that on balance there are decisive and controlling reasons why the senate ought to ratify before it adjourns this summer. The advocates of delay, for example Adolph Berle, the former assistant secretary of state, contend that until "the rest of the plan" for a general European peace is "at least in sight," the senate should not approve this "piecemeal job." This means, I take it, that in his judgment Mr. Molotov is more likely to agree to an Austrian and a German treaty in order to get the Italian treaty ratified.

But is he? Berle is supposing that to delay the re-establishment of peace between Italy and the United Nations will work solely to the advantage of Russia, the disadvantage of Russia, I think this is untrue. If Russia is in no great hurry to have an Austrian and a German treaty, then she cannot be in a great hurry to have an Italian treaty.

The chief sufferers from delay will be Italy and the United States because the decision to "delay" will be taken by all the world as new evidence that no president, no secretary of state, nor even a bipartisan delegation of senators, can negotiate for America.

Molotov Complaint
Molotov will be able to say to Bevin and Bidault: "You see, you think I have been obstructing and delaying. But look at these Americans. In 1947, as in 1919, the fact that they have signed a treaty does not mean that they are going to be a treaty. They are always in a great hurry at the conference table to have agreements. But when there are agreements, the senate takes charge, and acts as if it was free to reopen the whole negotiations."

Berle, I realize, is not proposing that the treaty be rejected, but only that it be delayed and its injustices rectified. But that is tantamount to asking that the negotiations be reopened, that the treaty be regarded merely as a draft which, subject to other considerations, we may—and on the other hand we may not—eventually approve.

I am one of those who criticized Byrnes consistently for concentrating on the Italian and the Balkan treaties before taking up the German and a general European settlement. This was a cardinal mistake, I believe. We should never have signed any one treaty until all the European treaties could be signed together. But the mistake has been made, the Italian treaty has been signed, and the original mistake cannot be corrected now by reopening the agreements which Byrnes agreed to on behalf of the United States.

That would be an even greater mistake. For that would make it much more difficult for Marshall to negotiate effectively. What answer could he make if Molotov asked him, if Bevin and Bidault asked him, how likely it was that he could obtain prompt ratification of an Austrian or a German treaty?

What would Marshall reply if we are asked, as we would be, whether the Senate would delay the Austrian and German treaties to influence the Japanese, as it delayed the Italian to influence the Austrian and German? There could be no answer.

Marshall would be a lame duck in the council of foreign ministers. The chief pressure for delay comes, of course, from the friends of Italy in the United States. Yet I think it can be demonstrated that it is not in the best interests of Italy to delay the ratification of this treaty. For until the treaty is ratified, Italy is legally at war with the United States, with France, with the British commonwealth and empire, with Yugoslavia, with the Soviet Union, and indeed with nearly all the United Nations.

Berle says that "an executive arrangement" can end "the purely technical state of war." This is not true. The United States cannot by a unilateral executive arrangement of its own end the state of war between Italy and the other countries. Yet as long as Italy is legally at war, she cannot be admitted to the United Nations, she cannot make commercial treaties, she cannot get the payments due to her by Great Britain and other countries, she cannot recover her assets in Germany, she cannot collect the pre-war commercial debts owed to Italian nationals, she cannot enjoy the property rights abroad resulting from the trade which has been carried on since the fall of Mussolini in 1943.

Benefit To Tito
Moreover, delay, which may mean eventual rejection of treaty, will permit Tito to reopen the agitation for Trieste and the rest of Istria, and enable him to say that the United States takes the view that there has been no definitive settlement of the Italian-Yugoslav frontier. If, in the supposed interest of Italy, the Trieste settlement is to be reopened now, then obviously it can also be reopened in the interest of Yugoslavia.

Inside Italy, delay with the implication that somehow the "Truman doctrine" is being applied, can only strengthen the hands of the extremists at the expense of the moderates. It will incite the neo-Fascists in the crypto-Fascists to dream of that American support which our unconsidered words appear to promise. It will incite the Communists to tactics designated to create confusion which the United States, under the sophomoric view of the Truman doctrine, will be obligated to cure but in fact unable to cure. The great middle moderate mass of the Italian people, whom we really wish to befriend, will be whipsawed in the struggle between the two extremes.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Psychopathic Case No. 1007

KEEP 'em away from me! . . . Don't let 'em come near me! came the cry from a shuddering figure on the hospital cot.

The doctor reassured him with a friendly nod. "Hold 'em! Grab that bridge!"

"Stop him!" the shuddering one continued. "Seeing things. Horrors!" explained the doctor. "He's just been through a frightful experience."

"And no grass," yelled the patient. "If I have grass, make it green. No blue grass, positively. Stop waving those white fences at me! No mint, I tell ya!"

"Brush those adjectives off the bed!" the doctor barked. "Tough case," the doctor went on. "Newspaperman assigned to Churchill Downs for two weeks before the Kentucky Derby."

"Block that colt!" The up those state! . . . They're leering at me again! . . . Now he's under the bed now!" screamed the patient. "Who's under the bed?" asked the doctor softly.

"Matt Winn!" said the hysterical patient, sweating profusely. "I tell you I won't take any more songs of the Southland! . . . Down with wistaria bushes! . . . Down with Kentucky colonels! . . . Block that plantation!"

"He'll be all right in another few weeks," the doctor assured us.

"Listen!" screamed the patient. "I don't want the two chestnut colts in bed with me, but make the three roans and the bay horse get out!"

"Maybe I should say months instead of weeks," the doctor whispered. "The wonder to me is that any writer sent down into the Kentucky area to send in color stuff for two weeks before the Derby ever comes out in as glib a shape as this victim. They've been holding it for generations. And at the same time under the same conditions. There's nothing new about it. Yet these poor newspaper fellows sent down every season weeks ahead of the race to treat it like a novelty."

"Hey, nurse!" cried the figure in the cot. "Don't forget I'm to be taken to the blacksmith to be shod all around this afternoon. And have the veterinarian look at that saddle some."

"Poor fellow!" said the doctor. "He had to send in a long story every day all through April setting a new high for superlatives."

"Doctor!" cried the patient. "Has Aristides been here? Where's Exterminator? . . . Can you sing Weep No More My Lady? . . . Don't forget I get another injection of bourbon in an hour! . . . Look, nurse, my trouble is that I'm good in the mud."

"Lie back and try to be quiet," the doctor ordered.

"Quiet! With all those banjo players under my pillow! Quiet! With all those traditions of old south dancing on my chest! Are you nurse?" the patient replied.

"I have an idea to relieve his mind," whispered the doctor. He bent over the Derby reporter.

"Ah! You're running in blinkers!" exclaimed the reporter.

"Listen," urged the doctor. "The patient is blind."

"Look," said the doctor. "I've got news for you. You won't have to mention Colonel Matt Winn again for a year."

That did it. The patient slumped back and went to sleep.

DERBY AFTERMATH
The horse had his moment. And now he "gets the air." Gone is the Derby equine. But the "bull" still lingers there.

A telephone strike is one occasion when the is no sense advising the strikers to "keep plugging."

Elmer Twitchell, back from the Derby, is of the Derby and mint julep fanatic who, shrouded of his stupor and told who had won, replied: "Yeah. But now they gotta pick a vice president" and went to sleep again.

Correspondence

By TRUMAN TWILL

Here is a cause we can get back of with enthusiasm. National Office Management Association is trying to get rid of the beginnings and endings of letters. A crusade for this purpose overdue.

It's silly to start off "Dear Sir or Madam." It is the cause may be, and a darned sight sillier to end up "Yours Truly," because they don't mean anything. The only reason they're there is because unspun years ago someone put them there.

Furthermore, their being there has been bothering some of us citizens for a long time. We're using all kinds of names and trying to get around them when it would be easier just to skip them altogether, which there now is an excuse to do.

The "dear" business should be saved for the rare occasions when it's sincere, which it obviously isn't in the salutation of most letters—because if it were there'd be bloodshed.

That "cordial, sincere, affectionate" stuff at the end usually has to be written with tongue in cheek. When it comes from the heart, which is rarely, it can't be said in a couple of words anyway.

While the office managers are at it, maybe they could do something about more nameless letters in general. This country is cursed with nameless letters. One or two short, ugly words sent to the right address usually would convey the idea better.

Even when the feeling is friendly, most letters go to needless lengths to say what might be said better in a single sentence. Gabbiness should be reserved for gabby occasions.

What the letter writers of America need is to get to the point. This is a letter that is to be written to a professional man whose office girl has sent a bill for three months' services, two of which were paid for when the services were performed and one of which can't be paid for until the services are performed.

"I don't owe you a red cent. Get on the ball, Twill."

Here is one for a chiseler who charged three prices for a job and thereby disqualified himself from ever getting any more work to do. "This is your first and last work for me, B. Twill."

And one for a supply house: "Enclosed find money for stuff, Twill."

Doctor Calls Test Tube Babies Better Bet Than Adoption

By The Associated Press
 CLEVELAND, May 8—Children born through artificial insemination can provide married couples more lasting happiness than adopted youngsters, contends Dr. Alan F. Guttmacher of Baltimore.
 "In a recent symposium," he told the Ohio State Medical Association yesterday, "it was declared that this work was illegal, that it was adultery and that signed papers would not remove it from that scope."
 "I think that is inexcusable. That is the way a lawyer would think. But the wife's motive is to escape adultery by having her baby by a decent means."

Dr. Guttmacher, an associate professor of obstetrics at Johns Hopkins university, said that since January, 1944, he had used this method on 33 cases. Of these, he said, 18 were successful.
 This is the way, he said, childless couples are treated in applying artificial insemination.

First, a donor of high intelligence and similar physical characteristics to the husband is selected. A thorough study of the man, whose identity is a carefully kept secret from the couple, is made then with respect to his family background.

No papers are signed, he said, since he does not believe in maintaining evidence that the husband is not the biological father of the child.

The couple's identity also is kept from the donor.

Insisting that he was not trying to persuade anyone that artificial insemination is a solution to sterility, Dr. Guttmacher declared himself convinced it was preferable to adoption.
 He said he selected his cases carefully and restricted them to people he respected, because he considered his work a holy one.

House Passes Appropriations; Ohio Senate O.K.'s Strike Ban

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., May 8.—A bulging $584,797,430 general appropriations bill headed today for a rough trip through the Ohio senate while the house got in exchange a measure to ban strikes by public employees.

The record-high biennial appropriations measure passed the house by a vote of 110 to 16 after the Republican majority in a 2 1/2-hour caucus yesterday decided against allowing any changes on the floor.

Beaten back were proposals by Democrats to add $7,500,000 for schools, $612,000 for dependent and crippled children and the blind, and to delete $700,000 for sales tax agents' commissions.

The approved measure carried $509,795,430 for governmental operations and $75,000,000 as a "down payment" for veterans' bonuses in anticipation that voters would approve next November a $300,000,000 bonus program.

Provides Increases

House leaders said the bill provided the following increases over the previous biennium: schools 38.8 per cent, welfare department 33.6 per cent, dependent children 41.6 per cent, and the blind 21.5 per cent. It also included $4,000,000 for additional pay increases to state employees.

Chairman Paul H. Ballard (R-Jackson) of the house finance committee, which recommended the bill, said that although the general fund had been cut $18,817,000 to a total of $423,000,470, it still was about $85,000,000 higher than last biennium.

Most Democrats and five Republicans voted against the bill. Republicans were James J. Barton of Cuyahoga, Ray C. Carpenter of Seneca, and Karl Bauer, Guy C. Hiner and Ross H. Hurford, all of Stark.

Senate finance committee members said hearings on the measure probably would start next week.

May Restore Subsidies

Indications were that a strong effort would be made to restore school subsidies to the $88,000,000-a-year basis proposed by the Daniels-Cramer allocation formula before it was cut $5,000,000 in the house education committee.

Restoration of some $200,000 for various veterans' organizations also may be sought.

While the house wrestled with the budget bill, the senate passed 27 to 6 a measure by Sen. David McFerguson (R-Guernsey) providing that public employees, including school teachers, who strike would lose their jobs.

An attempt by Sen. Allen N. Corlett (R-Cuyahoga) to make the proposal apply to state workers, instead of county, city and other public employees as well, lost 22 to 12.

Two Republican, Raymond E. Hildebrand of Lucas and John W. Morrison of Portage, joined the senate's four Democrats in opposition to the bill despite an hour-long majority caucus.

Cannot Get Higher Pay

Public employees absent from work without permission of superiors would be deemed to be on strike under provisions of the bill. They could not be rehired at higher pay, could not receive pay increases for three years and would be on probation five years without tenure.

The senate also passed and sent to the house proposals to increase retirement system benefits for public employees, teachers and school workers. Emergency clauses would make them effective upon enactment.

Public employees retiring after April 2, who had ten years service, would receive basic increases of $180 a year without additional contributions. Those previously retired would get monthly hikes of $1 for each year of service to a maximum of $25.

Retired teachers would get average increases of $17 monthly to a maximum of $25, and teachers and school employees retiring after April 2 would receive basic boosts of $15 a month if they served ten years.

Sen. Stanley G. McKie (R-Hamilton), co-sponsor of the measures, said the program would cost the public employees' retirement system about $350,000 a year, the teacher retirement system $1,117,000 and the school employees' retirement system $128,000.

The house industrial relations committee last night referred a series of proposals to outlaw the "closed shop" and restrict labor union activities to a sub-committee after another hearing in a jam-packed house of representatives chamber.

A Springfield CIO industrial union council delegation which President Francis A. Lewis estimated at nearly 150 was estimated. Others from Springfield included Joe Foley of the AFL Laborers and Hodcarriers and Jack Morgan of the AFL Local Workers and Bartenders union.

The house taxation committee virtually completed work on its local government aid program by recommending distribution this year of $14,500,000 in sales taxes. In addition to the $10,500,000 already appropriated.

Grants According To Need

Distribution would be based 75 per cent on county municipal tax duplicate and 25 per cent on population, with county budget commissions allocating grants according to needs.

The program for 1948 called for $12,000,000 from sales taxes and $13,000,000 from state-collected intangibles levies on bank deposits and other shares of financial institutions.

Other portions of the $31,750,000-a-year aid program include allocations of the state's $500,000 share of cigarette dealers' license fees, $3,250,000 in subsidies for care of tuberculosis patients and permission for cities to levy amusement admission taxes which yielded the state $3,000,000 last year.

The senate conservation committee recommended passage of a proposal to establish a state department of natural resources with a director and six-member advisory board. Several divisions of the department would be land, forests, water, parks, wildlife, beach erosion and geological survey.

Oklahoma Vet Lawmaker Held in Solon's Shooting

By The Associated Press
OKLAHOMA CITY, May 8.—A tall veteran of the Southwest Pacific war ended his freshman term as an Oklahoma lawmaker in the county jail today, accused of trying to kill a fellow legislator in a wild shooting affray on the floor of the state senate.

State Rep. Jimmie Scott, 35, was booked on a technical charge of assault with intent to kill after he pumped a bullet into 64-year-old State Senator Tom Anglin in the senate chamber yesterday, fired a second shot that went wild and then fled, only to be captured and disarmed in the senate washroom.

The prisoner told police the shooting stemmed from a recent divorce obtained from his former wife in Holdenville and her subsequent move to enforce a property settlement. Anglin's law firm represented the woman.

the evils of capitalism practiced by the Nazis. It seems to be we have been successful in America in preventing the monopoly of capitalism and the imperialist trend, and that the workers have made greater progress through the use of their vote and their freedom than Karl Marx or Friedrich Engels thought they could make.

Tass paraphrased this to read that "Stassen said that much had been written to the effect that the capitalist system produced the evil of monopolies, imperialism and the oppression of the workers. He believed that in the U. S. A. they had succeeded in preventing the development of monopolies and imperialist tendencies by capitalism and that the workers in the U. S. A. enjoyed a much greater degree of franchise than Marx or Engels could have imagined. In this lay the difference between the economic system in the U. S. A. and that which existed in Hitler Germany."

5. The Stassen text said that Stalin asked whether Stassen, speaking of economic stabilization, meant "the regulation of production," and that Stassen replied "the regulation of capitalism."

Tass paraphrased Stalin saying he declared that Stassen meant "control of production," and that Stassen replied that "was correct."

This difference over the words "control" and "regulation" persisted through the two versions of this part of the discussion.

ALEMAN SAYS U.S. VISIT SETS EXAMPLE

By The Associated Press
MEXICO CITY, May 8.—President Miguel Aleman was back in his own land today, convinced that his nine-day visit in the United States and President Truman's visit to Mexico had demonstrated qualities of international amity "which should be an example for the whole world."

Aleman came as he went, in President Truman's personal plane, "The Sacred Cow," stepping down from the plane at 11:55 p. m. with three members of his cabinet and his son, Miguelito, 14.

He struggled through the crowd at the airport entrance and mounted a tribune, where Fernando Casas Aleman, governor of the federal district, gave him a gold medal for "national heroism" and for his "singular achievement" in forming relations between Mexico and the United States.

Obviously deeply touched by the crowd's enthusiasm, the president said he felt the demonstration to be a representation of Mexico's will to "march and fight together for democracy."

"We took to the people of the United States the salute of the Mexican people," he declared. "The people of Mexico deserted their houses and gathered in the streets when President Truman came here and the people of the United States gave an equal demonstration of affection to the Mexican people through me."

"I am sure President Truman's visit and mine mark the beginning of a new era of friendship, understanding and cooperation between our two peoples which should be an example for all the world."

for damages resulting from jurisdictional strikes and secondary boycotts. Taft has abandoned his fight to let private employers seek injunctions against these practices.

The successful fight against the bargaining curb was led yesterday by two of Taft's fellow Republicans, Senators Ives (NY) and Morse (Ore).

Morse hailed the decision as a "great victory."

Dr. Hershey Reports Youth for Christ Gains Achieved in Central and South American Tour

By ELAINE BALLINGER

After nearly a month of travel in Central and South American countries in the interest of Youth for Christ International, Dr. C. E. Hershey, director of Marion Youth for Christ and a state and national Youth for Christ leader, has returned with a vivid picture of those lands and a broad view of missionary accomplishments and possibilities there, he declared. Rev. Marvin Lewis, until recently co-director of Marion Youth for Christ, who accompanied him, planned to remain with friends in Haiti until some time this week, then will return to this country to conduct evangelistic meetings. His temporary headquarters is Pensacola, Fla. The two ministers left Marion the day after Easter and made their entire itinerary by plane, visiting more than a dozen Latin American localities. Dr. Hershey arrived in Cincinnati early Saturday and on Sunday was back in the pulpit of Emmanuel Baptist church, where he is pastor.

Youth for Christ was set up definitely in two cities during their visits there. Dr. Hershey stated, one being at Managua, Nicaragua, and the other at Balboa, Panama, and a radio Youth for Christ program was organized to be broadcast in Spanish over radio station HCJB at Quito, Ecuador, South America, from which station Dr. Hershey and Rev. Lewis made two broadcasts heard in Marion by short wave radio reception. In Guatemala, they also made a broadcast, time for which was donated by the station. Meetings in which the American men took part in the southern countries were termed successful by Dr. Hershey, who said that numbers dedicated their lives to Christian youth work among their own people. Preaching was done through interpreters. In Jamaica Youth for Christ had been previously established, in charge of native workers.

Missionary Work Needed
Work of the missionaries was highly praised by Dr. Hershey, but there is still great need of missionary activity in the vast areas of the southern continent, he emphasized. Their plane flew over jungle territory where no white man has yet set foot, and they met and talked to a group which had just returned from jungle country of Colombia where savage tribes are found. Cities, towns and countryside provide wide contrast in wealth and poverty. Dr. Hershey commented some people being so poor they have no clothing, live in grass huts and wages are a penny a day.

"But, when missionaries open their eyes to the Gospel," Dr. Hershey declared, "and Christ has entered their hearts, they begin to seek more work, save their money for clothing and for a plot of ground and better shelter than their grass huts."

Rich and poor alike welcome the message of the missionaries and meetings are well attended, he said. On one occasion he made a 50-mile trip by jeep in Cuba to distribute Gospels of John, and the people flocked around in groups of 50 and 100 to receive the tracts, and often they were stopped by natives asking about the Gospel. Schools for teaching the speaking of English have been established by the missionaries, and a Bible school in Guatemala which is doing an excellent work is known as "the Moody Institute" of Central America.

Marion Woman in Panama
Dr. Hershey and Rev. Lewis stopped in Boquete, Panama, where Miss Pearl Tuttle, a Marion woman, is doing missionary work. In her English classes she is helped by a native boy, and remarkable progress is being shown by the pupils, who range from 16 years on, in their learning of the language. Encouraging response to Christian teaching is also shown.

Their hospitality is one of the outstanding features of the peoples of the southern countries, Dr. Hershey said, but accommodations at the best hotel in Quito were comparable to those of similar establishments here. During native dinners, several courses are served. Plentiful among the foods are bananas, and black beans are eaten in abundance. Prices are extremely high, with one dinner costing the American men $25.50 in the coin of the country. The system of money exchange in the various countries was somewhat confusing, Dr. Hershey commented. The mountain scenery is beautiful, and much of the territory they covered is mountainous, with volcanoes frequently in evidence. Dr. Hershey took movie camera views of several scenes on the trip.

Weather Generally Favorable
Weather was splendid until the plane reached Haiti, Dr. Hershey stated, when an hour of rainfall was encountered. In the area in Panama, where Miss Tuttle is stationed, a fine mist blows down from the mountains continuously, temperatures range from 45 degrees to 50 degrees at night, and during the day reach approximately 60 degrees. Only trouble met during the entire flight was from Cuba to Miami, Fla., when weather was not so good, and difficulty with landing gear forced the plane, in sight of Miami, to return to Cuba where the pilot was more familiar with landing conditions. Crew members of the plane were native and spoke only broken English. In spite of the plane's delay, Dr. Hershey reached Cincinnati, where Mrs. Hershey met him, some time ahead of schedule. The trip was made in a DC-4.

MAY CHECKS CALLED "CAMPAIGN MONEY"

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, May 8.—Robert May testified today at the war fraud trial of his father, Andrew J. May, former Kentucky representative, that two checks for $11,000 cashed at the capitol by the elder May in 1944 were "political contributions."

The government has charged that A. J. May took the proceeds from the two checks for interceding with army authorities seeking preferential treatment for a son of Joseph F. Freeman, on trial with May, and for E. A. Feldman, a California war contractor.

William A. Paisley, government prosecutor, has said May got $11,000 for having Freeman's son, Albert, transferred to an army post in the United States from the European battle zone.

Albert B. Fangmeyer, former bookkeeper in the office of the house sergeant at arms, identified the checks as having been cashed by May, wartime chairman of the house military affairs committee.

The checks were made payable to Robert May, Robert told the jury that he was in the navy at the time the checks were cashed. He said his father had put the "R. V. May" endorsement on the checks in accordance with an authority he had given his father.

"Do you know why those checks were made payable to you?" May's son was asked.

"I didn't then, but I know now—the were campaign money," Robert May replied.

CITIES PROPOSE LAW CHANGE

Want Voters To Decide How Much in Taxes Shall Return to Them.

By The Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, O., May 8.—A proposed constitutional amendment which would enable Ohio's electorate and not the legislature to decide how much of the state's tax income would revert to cities from whence it came was discussed today as the latest strategy in the battle of some cities, incorporated villages and townships to stave off bankruptcy.

Acting City Manager William E. Lucas of Springfield—where it is claimed the city hasn't enough money to meet operating expenses during the final half of 1947—announced an agreement between unidentified municipalities to submit such a constitutional amendment to voters in November.

The amendment is outlined by Lucas would seek to return as much as 50 per cent of all taxes, excises, fees and license revenues collected by the state within any given incorporated domain.

It also would bind the general assembly from enacting new duties upon any political subdivision unless the laws creating new responsibilities also provide for the state to bear the resulting expense.

Petition signatures of ten per cent of Ohio's voters are necessary to place the amendment on the general election ballot.

Lucas said the amendment was drafted because it appeared the current legislature would not grant more than a relatively small increase in the present local government (sales tax) fund, plus removal of the state from the admission tax field.

At Columbus, Mayor James A. Rhodes said the state capital was facing bankruptcy and that its employees were underpaid. Rhodes declared that the state took in $12,992,621 in sales and gasoline taxes, auto license fees, liquor taxes and liquor license fees from Columbus residents in 1946 but under existing distribution laws paid back only $1,005,193.

WOMEN'S CLUBS VOICE CLOSED SHOP OPPOSITION

O. K. Resolution Favoring $2,400
Minimum for Teachers.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., May 8.—On record as opposing the closed shop and supporting a standard minimum teachers' wage minimum of $2,400-a-year, the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs prepared to elect 1947 officers today before concluding a three-day convention here.

Mrs. C. E. M. Finney, one of many officers nominated for office without opposition, was to be inducted as president, succeeding Mrs. Clarence J. Goldthorpe of Youngstown.

During yesterday's sessions the convention adopted a resolution submitted by the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the Ohio group's parent organization, urging congress to ban the closed shop or any "variation" of it.

In advocating the $2,400 minimum for teachers' pay, the organization also urged that $1,600 be the absolute minimum throughout the United States.

A third resolution urging congress to enact emergency legislation permitting the U. S. to admit "proportionate share" of displaced persons also carried.

The only office that was to be decided by ballot today was for the junior federation presidency. Candidates were Mrs. Howard J. Martindale of Youngstown and Miss Betty Jane McWilliams of Martins Ferry.

Asparagus in The Spring

ASPARAGUS LUNCHEON DISH, with cheese-olive sauce.

By CHARLOTTE ADAMS

Associated Press Food Editor

Despite the fact that there is practically no such thing as a free lunch, asparagus is a vegetable and not a meat. It is quick-frozen and canned, still there is something distinctly springy about fresh asparagus. Many of us, including me, could eat it four or five times a week during the season.

The one lots of things which can be done with asparagus which are pleasant choices. This vegetable calls for sauces which make it into a perfectly adequate luncheon dish. Here is one of that sort.

Asparagus Luncheon Dish

2 tablespoons fat 2 table spoons flour 1 cup milk 1/2 cup light oil 1/4 cup sliced onion 20 stalks asparagus 1/2 cup grated cheese 4 olives, sliced for garnish

Melt fat in top of double boiler. Stir in flour. Slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Continue cooking for about 15 minutes or until sauce is thick and no starch taste remains. Stir in 1/2 cup sliced olives. Remove from heat. Arrange slices of toast in well-greased eight-inch heat-resistant glass or dish. Place five cooked asparagus stalks diagonally on each slice of toast. Pour sauce over asparagus and sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) for about 20 minutes, or until cheese is melted. Remove from oven and garnish with four sliced olives.

Asparagus and Scrambled Eggs

Place whole stalks of hot buttered asparagus on a chop plate, radiating from the center to the rim. Fill the center with a fluffy mound of hot scrambled eggs. Sprinkle grated Parmesan cheese over the asparagus and the eggs and serve at once.

Asparagus Vinaigrette

1 bunch asparagus, cooked and chilled 1 tablespoon vinegar, 3 table spoons salad oil, 1 hard-boiled egg, chopped, 1/2 teaspoon English mustard, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon ground white pepper, 1 teaspoon chopped chives

Place chilled asparagus on individual plates. Mix all other ingredients thoroughly, adding chopped egg last. Pour resulting sauce over asparagus and serve as a first course, or in place of salad.

Asparagus Loaf

2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 cup asparagus tips, cooked, 4 eggs, well beaten, 1 bunch of asparagus cooked, 1 cup cream, 1 cup diced cooked chicken, 1 teaspoon salt, fresh-ground black pepper. Melt butter or margarine. Add salt, pepper and cream and bring to a boil. Add chicken, asparagus tips, and well-beaten eggs. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Lay a well-buttered mold with cooked asparagus stalks and pour in cream mixture. Cover mold and place in a pan containing hot water about an inch deep. Poach in 350 degree oven until firm. Serve with cream sauce or Hollandaise sauce.

LOVE'S PERILOUS PATH

By ADELE GARRISON

I REPEATED Faith's ecstatic words to Katharine when I went to summon her from Mary's sick bed.

"You surely rate with my young daughter," I told her, and noted that her face was like that of a Madonna as she listened to my report of Faith's joy at the thought of seeing her.

"She rates with me," she replied quietly, and then I took her arm and escorted her to the door.

But as I opened it, she paused and murmured and admittance with a backward look at the bed.

"If you leave the door open, and stay near enough so that you can hear Mary breathe," she said, "it won't be necessary for you to stay inside the room."

"You can join the party," she went on. "Besides, I have a great favor to ask of you and Dicky, and it will save time and fuss to have you present and voting where I'm voting."

There was a purposefulness in her face and voice which told me the thing she meant to ask was one near her heart, and I did not need clairvoyance to know that it had to do with Faith.

The next instant Faith, a small hurricane, had dashed into her arms with fervent exclamations of "Oh Aunt Katharine! I've missed you so!" and for the next minute or two nobody had any time for conversation.

Quiet Obedience

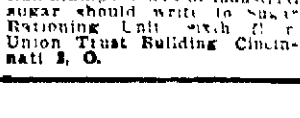

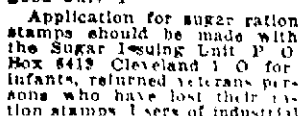

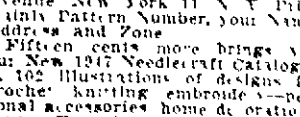

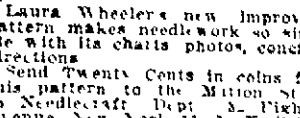

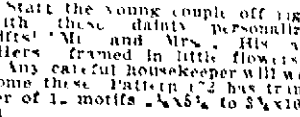

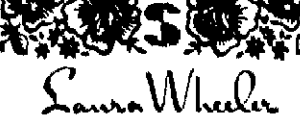

Then Katharine said quietly, "Faith will go over to you Mimi and Daddy for just a minute. I want to ask Uncle Jack something." And with the quiet obedience which she always gives Katharine, she ran over to Dicky. I was still standing in the doorway of Mary's bedroom.

I could not hear what Katharine said to Jack, but I saw his face light up at her words, and he nodded his head emphatically.

Then Katharine crossed to me "Maggie," she said, and I knew that she was addressing Dicky as well, "would it be possible for you to lend us Faith for dinner in our apartment tonight? We won't keep her up beyond her bedtime. And then could we bring her back and put her to bed, just the two of us, just as if she were our own?"

There was a wistfulness, and a huskiness, in her voice which

"I'll attend to everything," Katharine promised with a grin, twirling the corners of her mouth. "And now, what about it? May we three be excused for our dinner party?"

"You have our august permission," Dicky replied. "Just bring her back in one piece. That's all we ask."
